Chicago folk singer Mark Dvorak to appear in Ludington, MI on Saturday, November 13.

Nationally known folk singer and songwriter, Mark Dvorak, will appear in concert on Saturday, November 13, at 7:30pm in the Gallery at the Ludington Area Center for the Arts, 107 S Harrison St, Ludington, MI (231-845-2787). Concert tickets are $12 General Admission, $10 Seniors (60 & over) and $5 for Kids (15 & under). Proceeds benefit the Ludington Area Center for the Arts.

Mark will also be doing a FREE Kids Music Workshop on November 13, at 2:00pm in the Gallery at the Ludington Area Center for the Arts. This is a fun, interactive and educational session.

Mark's roots are in Chicago but since 1981, Mark Dvorak has been crisscrossing the country performing, teaching and learning all the while. He's visited big cities where his concerts and recordings have been hailed as "a refreshing portrait of the living folk tradition," and he's traveled many a back road to some out-of-the-way place or little town where the sounds and songs of the American experience seem more deeply rooted; where his performance comes across like a friendly conversation with neighbors.

He has been called "a folk singer's folk singer who follows unerringly in the footsteps of Pete Seeger and Woody Guthrie," and his song writing has been called "wondrous" and "profound." Dvorak's latest CD, Every Step of the Way was recently released on the Waterbug label is receiving wide acclaim in the United States and abroad.

"Every Step delivers some unexpectedly exquisite pleasures... 'My Rose of Jericho' is the sort of song that reminds you why we have songs..." RAMBLES.NET

"I loved your record... great songs and great singing; wonderful playing..." MICHAEL SMITH
"... Quietly powerful..." SING OUT!

"... is easy-going, affectionate and all-embracing, with effortless traces of good-time country, blues, old-time pop, swing and back-porch; I hear everything from Johnny Cash and Billie Holiday to the Everlys and Sonny Terry & Brownie McGhee..." NET RHYTHMS REVIEW
